Cleaning XRS Vinyl Roll Up Door

- If the sections are dry, blow any excess dirt or debris off of the section with air.
- Rinse the section with warm water. Soak the panel as much as possible to allow any additional excess debris to loosen up and wash off of the section.
- Use a garden hose or pressure washer on the mist setting to further wash off the section. Do not use a pressure washer at high pressure as this can wash off the oils in the vinyl material and cause your panels to dry out and become brittle.
- Once the section is rinsed thoroughly use a bucket with warm soapy water and soft sponge or cloth to wipe off the section. Do not use scrub brushes or any type of scouring pad as this will scratch the vinyl.
- If buildup on the section is not coming off, repeat the steps above as needed until the layers of buildup breakdown and wash off.
- If soap and water is not enough, Airlift Doors recommends using a cleaner with ingredients similar to that of the all-purpose cleaner "La's Totally Awesome," and repeat the steps above.
- * Never use any type of cleaner containing ammonia. This will cause damage and possible etching to your section. Household cleaners such as windex or 409 should never be used to clean your vinyl as these will cause irreparable damage to your section.
- It is a good idea to clean your sections regularly to reduce the amount of dirt and chemical buildup on the panels.
